Vision for West Africa

Recently we asked Rev. James Odom, our West Africa Director, to share his vision for extending AABS across the West Africa Region. AABS currently has Bible schools in seven of the 16 countries: Ghana, Nigeria, Togo, Benin, Ivory Coast, Liberia, and Sierra Leone.

Rev. Odom's vision is twofold: To establish the ministry of AABS across the length and breadth of the West Africa Region, and to raise a competent, Spirit-filled, indigenous leader in each country to be its national director. Both will enhance the effective Biblical training of church leaders and boost evangelism and discipleship

Rev. Odom continues to seek out contact persons in the remaining nine countries. With their help, he will organize meetings for Christian leaders, arrange one-on-one visits, and send out emails and digital flyers to introduce AABS.

Preparations will include gathering resource information about each country and its culture, religious atmosphere, political activities and other strategies as well as soliciting the prayers of God's people. Most of the rest of the 16 West Africa countries are Islamic enclaves and God's wisdom and guidance is needed.

AABS Mission Statement:

"Making Biblical education available and affordable in the local churches and communities across Africa"

Will you join Rev. Odoom in asking God: (1) to grant him the assistance of Spirit-filled contact persons who will embrace the concept of AABS, (2) for a successful and effective ministry in each country, and (3) for health, financial provision, and divine protection as he travels to war-torn countries.
