A Glimpse into the AABS Member Schools in Africa

What are the schools like that AABS resources in Africa? This is the time of year we receive the annual reports from our national directors about the Bible schools in their various countries. It is a time to celebrate what God has done during 2022 and to hear the concerns of the school directors. From schools that are struggling to reopen after the pandemic to schools with many students, from schools in large cities to many schools in rural villages, and even one in a desert area, there is great diversity among the schools we serve. But one common theme emerges from these reports: Our directors have a heart desire to reach more pastors and leaders with the training that we offer.

Allan & Rebecca Yoder, members of the Hopewell Network Apostolic Team, recently attended the graduation of Daystar Bible College, Accra, Ghana.

Here are samples of prayer requests from Bible school directors in the various countries:

“Strategy to reach church leaders for training” (Botswana);

“Another class to form” (Kenya);

“For God to bring more students” (Ghana)

A national director writes, “Affiliation (of new schools) is currently a challenge. But we are optimistic for expansion, for now we have reached seven districts out of sixteen districts in Sierra Leone. To God be the glory.”

Since our beginning in 2004 we have been honored to serve hundreds of Bible schools in 16 countries of Africa and 5 countries outside Africa. In 2022, our member schools in Africa have served approximately 2600 students. Please join us in prayer that God’s Word will continue to “spread widely and grow in power” - Acts 19:20; 12:24; and others.
